Campus Radio Starts Broadcasts Tonight

Campus radio station WNTC, operated jointly by students of Clarkson College and Potsdam State Teachers College, will begin its regular schedule of broadcasts at 9 o'clock tonight with a special opening program.

With its range limited to the immediate vicinity of Potsdam, the new carrier-current station will broadcast over a frequency of 640 kilocycles.

According to Station Manager Nick Sfikas, a senior at Clarkson College, the station will broadcast from 9 to 11 p. m. each week day evenin. After the Tuesday, March 23, broadcast, the station will be off the air during the spring vacation until Monday, April 5.

Tonight's special opening broadcast climaxes over a year of organizational activity. Plans for the station were first originated early last year by the Clarkson Electronic Society, a student activity interested in amateur radio broadcasting. Students from the State Teachers College were invited to participate and the committee became a trial member of the Intercollegiate Broadcasting System.
